

Candid Software receives the prestigious ISO 9001-2008 Certification

Summary – Candid Software is delighted to get the ISO 9001-2008 Certification for their sustained quality management. Offering top-notch services in web development, SEO and being a major outsourcing partner to global companies, they have always adhered to the high standards of operational excellence.

Candid Software has received the ISO 9001-2008 certificate for quality management, which is an acknowledgement of their consistently high quality standards. Started in New Delhi in 1999, Candid Software is backed by meticulously set up quality management system and has excelled at offering services in the fields of web designing, web development SEO, software and Internet marketing.

“The certification for our quality management systems underlines our commitment to provide clients with the highest quality of work without charging stratospheric prices,” said Mr. Navneet Kaushal, CEO. “It is gratifying to see that our efforts over the last decade have been rewarded.”

ISO 9001 certification verifies that a company has put in place comprehensive Quality Management Systems. It takes into account all areas of operations – internal staff training practices to design, development, delivery and service, ensuring that the necessary structure and processes are there to produce high quality services. Ongoing compliance is ensured through external audits every year and recertification every three years.

Elaborating on the company’s success, Mr. Kaushal commented, “The certification testifies our adherence to high standards of operational excellence, which we’ve set for ourselves. We’ve created our own unique web development processes, created separate client delivery teams and brought about numerous improvements in our web project management to make it an unforgettable experience for the clients. In fact, all our methodologies have been refined time and again over the past 11 years.”

Candid Software has set up structured processes within the organization and business goals of the teams/employees are measured objectively. Performances are reviewed against the pre-defined set of parameters for each position. Bringing together a mix of cutting edge technologies, hands on experience and procedure to eliminate error, Candid Software has emerged as a trustworthy provider of offshore web development services.
